THE CITIZEN SOLDIERY

These are the days when the National Guard is in Evidence

COMPANY B, LEADS

The Excellent Standing of the Fifth Regiment in the Second Brigade is due to Col. Taylors Untiring Efforts.

THE FIGURES OF THE DIVISION

Among the many general orders issued from the adjutant general's department of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, there is none that is so eagerly awaited, as the tabulated reports of the respective brigade inspectors, of the regiments that comprise their tour of inspection. It generally takes two or three months to prepare these reports, after the close of the inspections in the early spring, and general order No. 20, recently issued from the office of the inspector general, Colonel Sweeney, furnishes much important information regarding the good work in some of the commands, and of a falling off in several others. Several recommendations are made by all three brigade inspectors, as well as the inspector general himself, relative to the movements that are expected of troops, in armories not large enough to assemble a company, let alone executing the necessary man, euvers. The cavalry troops and the artillery of the state are found to be in excellent shape.

Locally, as well as in Central Pennsylvania, interest in the citizen soldiery is mostly confined to the Second brigade, which will go into camp on the 20th of this month at Tipton station. The general averages of the regimental organizations of the brigade are as follows: Fifth regiment, 93.38; Tenth, 91.59; Fourteenth, 88.43; Sixteenth, 89.46, and Eighteenth, 88.90. It will be seen by the ratings of the entire Second brigade that the Fifth will this year have the distinction of being the most efficient organization in the state and a great amount of credit is due the efforts and strict discipline that has characterized Colonel H. S. Taylor's brief administration as to the regimental commander. In leading the Second brigade the Fifth will, this month, at Tipton, make even greater efforts to advance. Besides making the leading mark in the infantry regiments of the west, the Fifth also ranks seventh in the entire division, but 3 per cent below first place; 1 per cent below the First regiment, of Philadelphia the "Pride of the East;" one point ahead of the crack Third regiment and three points in advance of the Second. The standing of the Central Pennsylvania regiment is a great and pleasing surprise to the National Guardsmen of the respective companies, as the regiment has but seven companies, as against eight, ten and twelve company regiments in other parts of the state, and this was very much against the attendance at the recent inspections.

In the company ratings of the Fifth regiment it will be seen that the companiest rank in the following order: Company B, Bellefonte, 96.80, F, Indiana, 96.65; D, Blairsville, 96.33; E, Altoona; 94.47, C, Hollidaysburg, 91.64; and G, Lewistown, 86.64.

The following are the ratings of the other infantry regiments, by company, in the Second brigade, as well as the figures of the two batteries and the two cavalry troops.

Tenth regiment: A. 84.29; B, 90.20; C, 95,17; D, 83.28; E, 94.63; H, 88.97; I, 98,60; K, 91.58.

Fourteenth regiment: A, 96.33; B, 86.20; D, 87.95; E, 90.82; F, 91.04; G, 84.55; H, 83.08; I, 87.54.

Sixteenth regiment: A, 81.52; B, 90.65; C, 92.37; D, 87.98; E, 81.98; F, 91.82; G, 91,90; H, 88.14; I, 89.02; K, 89.69; L, 89.87, M. 98.43.

Eighteenth regiment: B, 76.86; B, 86.28 C, 89.03; D, 95.56; E, 95.87; F, 82.14; G, 83,65; H, 82.75; I, 97.90, K, 86.87; L, 87.14; M, 90.78.

Artiliery: Battery B, 94.78, Battery C. 94.32.

Sheridan Troop, Tyrone, 96.15, and Troop F, New Castle, 90.37.

In closing up the report of the Second brigade Major Samuel Jeffries, the inspector, has the following to say which, if heeded by those in authority, will lead o many of the companies of the brigade getting an armory and the encampment in the centre of the Fifth's territory should add much to the chances of those in need of drill halls being awarded the same by the armory board. Major Jefferies says:

The company officers throughout the brigade report lack of interest and small attendance at drills. This is not to be wondered at when you consider the miserable halls and places the companies use as armories. It is surprising that they have any drills at all. The company officers certainly deserve credit for the showing they make, as the requirements are more and more each year, with no extra allowance in the way of funds.

"This fact is forcing good officers out of the service. It is all hard work and no pay. With the country as prosperous as it is, good officers do not have time to give to military duties, especially when they do not receive sufficient funds to pay for taking care of the extra equipment, etc.

"This commonwealth will awaken soon to the fact that the time is past when it can get good men, as officers, to give all their time to the cause of patriotism.

"The need of the Second brigade is armories, a decent place for the citizen soldiery to assemble for drill. I believe it would be money well spent if the United States government would detail an experienced non-commissioned officer of good character to have charge under supervision of company commander, of the armories, equipment and rifle range. The day is past when the state and United States expect a number one service gratis. Times are too good and good men too busy to give all their time for nothing."

Relative to the whole division of troops the regimental figures of efficiency gives the highest rating to the Eighth regiment commanded by Colonel Joseph B. Hutchison, of Harrisburg. This regiment is a part of the Third brigade, of which Major Clarke is the inspector.

The fourteen regimental organizations in the order according to the figure of efficiency:

Eighth Infantry	96.77
Ninth Infantry	94.67
Fourth Infantry	94.46
Twelfth Infantry	94.04
First Infantry	94.02
Thirteenth Infantry	93.83
Fifth Infantry	93.79
Third Infantry	92.88
Tenth Infantry	92.07
Second Infantry	90.49
Sixteenth Infantry	89.87
Sixth Infantry	89.49
Fourteenth Infantry	89.36
Eighteenth Infantry	82.25

Must Put on Fire Escapes.

Fifteen buildings in Bellefonte must put on fire escapes so says Edward Gamble, Deputy Factory Inspector. Mr. Gamble has been in Bellefonte the past week and up until Wednesday he has picked out fifteen different buildings in the town that must have better protection for the occupants. As the third floor of the Daily News office building is occupied one will be put up here. A small iron ladder at the rear and one section at the side of the Bush House is not sufficient to get the people out in case of fire and he says that a larger one will likely have to be put on there. One party in town grew very indignant and said they would no sign the agreement, "All right said Mr. Gamble perhaps you will for a squire," and everything was settled satisfactory between the inspector and the property owner.

The Opera House will have better means of escape, although the plans had been formulated for the change before Mr. Gamble arrived in town. An exit to the gallery will be made separate from the main entrance to the play house and thus do away with that awful jamming at the front door. Another side exit will be made on the lower floor. Mr. Gamble intends to have this work accomplished throughout the town immediately and inside of a month most of our large building will have better means of escaping in case of fire.

Will Leave Bellefonte.

Captain Irvin and Captain Hunter of the Salvation Army have been ordered by a higher official to make preparations to leave Bellefonte this coming week, they will be transferred to other fields of usefulness in the Masters Vineyard. We feel very sorry to lose these ladies from our midst as they have been doing a splendid work in Bellefonte, and their going away will be keenly felt by the members of the Bellefonte corps. But wherever they go we wish them success in the work. Both ladies have been held in high esteem by the citizens of Bellefonte and they always conducted themselves as perfect ladies on all occasions. They will hold a farewell meeting in the army hall Sunday evening and the public is cordially invited.

BISHOP BOWMAN STILL ACTIVE

He has Reached the Ripe Old Age of Ninety Years.

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Was Given a Reception at the Home of his Daughter---He is still Active After Three Score Years of Church Work.

HAS BEEN IN BELLEFONTE OFTEN

Orange, N. J., July 16th.—The Rev. Dr. Thomas Bowman senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal denomination, who lives with his daughter, Mrs. Burns D. Caldwell, at 81 High street, Orange, celebrated his ninetieth birthday Monday at the home of his other daughter, Mrs. George P. Smith, of Baltimore, who gave a reception in her father's honor.

Bishop Bowman is seen almost daily on the streets in Orange, where he walks unaccompanied, and he is as much interested in the affairs of his church as ever since his ordination in 1839. During his bishopric he has attended at least two conventions in every state in the union. He has traveled around the world twice and has officiated at religious gatherings in Mexico, Europe, India, China, and Japan and has dedicated more than a thousand churches. He retired from active work just six years ago but has since preached several times at Calvary Methodist church, East Orange, of which he is a member.

The venerable bishop was born at Briar Creek, near Berwick, Columbia county, Pa., July 15, 1817. He went to school at Wilbraham, Mass. At that time his health was poor, but he believes that the walk of three miles to school every day laid the foundation of the long and healthy life he has enjoyed. Later he went to school at Cazenovia, N. Y. He entered Dickinson college at Carlisle, Pa., and was graduated in 1837. He originally intended to study law, but finally decided to enter the ministry. He was licensed to preach in 1839 and had a mission charge at Hazleton, Pa. Later he took the Berwick circuit, which included twenty-six churches.

Bishop Bowman taught in Dickinson college from 1840 to 1844 and then went to Williamsport, Pa., where he founded the Dickson seminary, of which he was the first president. He was at the head of the institution for ten years and erected many of the seminary buildings. He became president of the Indiana Asbury University in 1859, holding the post for thirteen years. He made a name for himself as a great organizer and preacher. For a year, 1864-65, he served as chaplain of the United States senate. He knew Lincoln and the other great men of the day intimately.

The general conference gained the bishop as a member in 1868 and again in 1872. Each time he served at the head of the Indiana conference delegation. He was made bishop at the session of 1872 on the first ballot.

Teacher Sign Agreement.

At a meeting of the West Beaver township school board, near Selinsgrove, Wednesday night, a resolution was passed requiring all the teachers in that district to sign an agreement that they will abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors and tobacco and not loaf in or about hotels during the school term at least. The teachers signed the compact cheerfully, and the members of the board say they are going to enforce the rule rigidly. The penalty is the forfeiture of the right to teach in the district for the remainder of the term.

Presbyterians to Build.

At a meeting of the Presbyterian congregation at Philipsburg on Wednesday evening it was unanimously decided to build a new church, as their old one was badly damaged by fire the night of the 4th.

It is the purpose of the congregation to erect a church costing $20,000 and it is gratifying to note that Mrs. Geo. W. McGaffey has agreed to contribute the last 5,000 required to build the same.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Sewer Question Discussed—Pruner Orphanage Vetoed by Burgess Curtin.

The regular semi-monthly session of the Borough Council was held on Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock with President Keller in the chair and the following members present: Kirk, Shuey, Wagner, Beezer, Judge, Hamilton and Brown.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Verbal communications being called for W. D. Zerby, Esq., appeared in regard to the sewer proposition for property owners residing on Bishop street. He objected to the proposed ordinance as outlined saying that the Haag House, Reynolds properties, Bauer's and his own properties had already been taxed for the present sewer on that street.

Senator Heinle seemed satisfied with the arrangement proposed in the sewer ordinance.

A petition from the citizens of Reynolds Avenue asked for the removals of some of the large stones on that street and a grading of the street. Lowering and grading the street for a distance of 60 feet. G. W. Rees and others objected to this part of petition. It was referred to the Street committee.

The resolution passed at the last meeting rescinding the resolution rescinding the Orphanage was vetoed by Burgess John I. Curtin. He gave no reasons for so doing. This fact was objected to by Dr. Kirk, Shuey, Beezer and others. Dr. Kirk argued that the resolution rescinding the ordinance was not legal any way and that the veto had no affect. It was argued otherwise by Mr. Keller.

Mr. Judge moved seconded by Mr. Brown that action on the veto be postponed until next meeting. The motion carried.

Nothing of importance was reported by the different committees.

The ordinance question was again taken up and Borough Solicitor Mitchell submitted three new ordinances which he had drawn up which assesses each property owner $10.00 for tapping the sewer. The tapping of the sewer is compulsory. This created quite an argument some thinking that the ordinances proposing a per front foot tax was the most equitable.

The water duplicate amounting to $4825.00 has been turned over to the Water collector.

Solicitor Mitchell had a brand new proposition to lay before council. It was this, that Bellefonte make application to the State Highway department for a State road through Bellefonte to connect with the new State road now being built between here and Milesburg. The road would probably run on Linn street, in Allegheny to Bishop and out Bishop toward Pleasant Gap. It would be a mile and a quarter long and cost about $8.000. Bellefonte would only have to pay ¼ of the cost or $1,000. The State would pay half the repairs to the road forever afterwards. Council thought the proposition a good one and worth considering.

Mr. Brown of the fire and police asked permission to repair walk along side of Public building and put screens in windows.

The following bills were approved and orders drawn:

Street Pay Roll	$ 48 60
Police Pay Roll	50 00
H. C. Quigley	37 50
Thos. Shaughnessy	75
L. C. Wallace	100 00
Water Works Pay Roll	146 25
W. T. Kelley, 1mo as clerk	20 00
W. F. Reynolds	100 00
American Ex. Co	60
Total	$504 30

Wheat is Ready to Harvest.

Wheat is ripening rapidly and the work of harvesting the crop, which, promises to be a good one, will be commenced this week. The oats are coming along nicely, but some fields are affected with a blight, the stocks turning yellow and red prematurely. Just what effect this will have on the yield when harvested can not be told now. There promises to be a large crop of potatoes, while the corn and the newly-put-out tobacco plants are doing nicely in Clinton county.

A Narrow Escape.

Wednesday evening a freight train had started up over the high tressle to the Bellefonte furnace when one of the wheels on a coke car broke, the car slid over against the guard rail and was stopped. If it would have been higher on the bridge no doubt but what the car would have gone over the high bridge. A brakemen was sitting on the car and he would have gone down with the wreck.

GENERAL BLOWN TO PIECES

Another Dastardly Outrage at Alexandropol

A LADY ALSO KILLED

General Alikhanoff Accompanied by a Lady and Coachman, Lose their Lives

SON AND DAUGHTER SUSTAIN INJURIES

Alexandropol Russia, July 17.—General of Tifis, Madam Glieboff, wife of General Glieboff, and the coachman who were driving their carriage, were blown to pieces by bombs thrown at their conveyance at 2:30 this morning.

A son of General Alikhanoff and a daughter of General Glieboff sustained serious injuries.

The party were returning to the residence of General Alikhanoff from his club. The bombs were hurled in Bebouloff street.

General Alikhanoff was nicknamed "The Wild Beast" by the Caucasian members of the Lower House of Parliment, who often referred to his cruelties in the Kutais district, where he led a number of unitive expiditions to stamp out disorders. His rigorous methods to this end brought down upon him the enmity of the Revolutionists

General Alikhanoff was serious ly injured by a bomb at Borjam, May 30 of last year. This bomb was thrown just as he was about to take a train for Tiflis. Its explosion seriously wounded in addition to the general, a member of his staff and several Cossacks. The remainder of the Cossacks fired into the crowd, killing many persons, and then burned to the ground the buildings into which the people had fired.

JOHN F. GRAY DEAD.

Passed Away Suddenly at State College Thursday Morning.

John F. Gray of State College one of the best known business men in Centre county passed into the Great Beyond Thursday morning at 10:30.

Mr. Gray had an attack of heart trouble last week, but the pain passed away in a short time and he was up and around as usual attending to business ever since. This morning he got up feeling splendid, and he had engaged several carpenters and other workmen to do some work around his several buildings and had planned to come to Bellefonte on the morning train but something detained him at home. He was busy instructing the men how the work should be done when the summonde came, and in a moments time without a struggle or a pain he passed away.

John F. Gray was an honerable business man. He was always held in the highest esteem by the business men of State College and Bellefonte and he traveled in and out among our citizens and no one had a harmful word to say against him. He handled the largest insurance business in Bellefonte and has patrons all over the state.

John F. Gray was born at Fillmore and was 49 years old the 10 of last April. He was married to Ella M. Mattern of Half Moon Valley. He was an earnest members of the Methodist Episcopal church of State College and of the Bellefonte Castle of the Knights of Golden Eagles.

He leaves to mourn his death his loving wife and the following children, Oscar, Myrtle, Spensor and Florence.

St. Johns Outing Held At Hecla Park Thursday.

The annual outing of St. Johns English Lutheran church and Sunday school was held at Hecla park Thursday. Trolly cars left the junction of Main street and Bellefonte avenue at 7.30 o'clock. The train left Mill Hall at 8.33 the fair for the round trip from Mill Hall was the same as in former years, 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for children under 12 years. Transportation was furnished by the school for all scholars under 12, years. All friends of the church and Sunday school were cordially invited to accompany the picnickers and enjoy the day at this pretty mountain spot.

WILLIAM THOMAS HILLIBISH.

Instantly Killed By a Train at New Florence on Saturday Evening.

On Saturday evening shortly after eight o'clock William Hillibish brother of Miss Martha Hillibish of Bellefonte was instantly killed at New Florence a little town west of Johnstown by one of the fast trains on the Pennsylvania R. R.

Mr. Hillibish was master of mechanics for Eyre and Shoemaker and was on his way to see about an engine that was to be repaired the following day and while walking along the P. R. R. tracks he noticed a train coming towards him, he immediately stepped to the other track and when he did another train in the opposite direction struck him and undoubtedly killed him instantly. His body was picked up by kind friends and taken to an undertaker who prepared it for burial.

This is certainly a very very sad affair and has cast a gloom over the entire community. The body was brought to Bellefonte on the 8.16 train Sunday evening accompanied by Mr. Rush Larimer who is employed at the same place. Fully five hundred friends of the deceased had gathered at the depot and when the remains were to be taken from the train to the hearse many words of kindness and sympathy were spoken in regards to the death of the young man.

Billy was here a few weeks ago to visit his sister Miss Martha and he told us he was getting along so well. He was in the best of health and looked as though the world was treating him kindly. He was a splendid young fellow, always cheerful and happy. He had a kind loving disposition and best of all, he took such good care of his sister, and supplied her with whatever she needed. He was a first class mechanic and was very successful in his line of work. He will be greatly missed both by his sister and his employer and his many friends.

William Thomas Hillibish was born in Bellefonte. He was a son of the late Nicholas and Johanna Hillibish at one time one of the wealthiest families in our town. Mr. Hillibish was born in the house now occupied by Mrs. Mitchell on Spring st. May 29 1856 making his age 51 years. He leaves to mourn his death the following brothers and sisters, Frank Edmund, George and John of Canton, Ohio, Mrs. Roland Cheeseman of Washington D. C. and Miss Martha of Bellefonte. He was a member in good standing of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Bellefonte, also of the Logan Fire Company.

On Monday evening about 4:30 the remains of the late William Thomas Hillibish were consigned to the tomb. Services were held in the Methodist Episcopal church conducted by Rev. J. B. Stein. The large edifice was filled with friends of the deceased. The casket was covered with beautiful floral emblems. The pall bearers were the following gentlemen John Knisely, James Seibert, C. T. Gerberrick, John Keichline, James Schofield and H. B. Pontius.

BIG FIRE AT MACKEYVILLE.

Disastrous Fire in Mackeyville in Which a Boy Lost his Life.

Monday about 3:30 o'clock, while Mr. Andrew Smith a highly respected and retired farmer was sitting on his porch in Mackeyville, the alarm of fire was given. It was discovered that Mr. Smith's barn was on fire. Mr. Smith hurried to the stable and released his horses, not knowing that his little grandson was in the upper part of the stable burning to death.

Mrs. Walizer saw the boy appear at the window of the barn. He yelled, "catch me," and was overcome by smoke fell back into the flames and was burned to death.

His body was not recovered until after the stable had burned down. The fire spread rapidly, burning Alfred Heltman's house, in which Mr. Smith lived, then spread and burned John Solt's stable and house, Mrs. Katy Lee's stable, and Lloyd Greeks stable and shoe-maker shop.

An appeal was sent to Mill Hall for help. Mill Halls fire company promptly responded and arrived at Mackeyville about 6 o'clock after the fire had spent its fury.

Mr. Smith's grandson would have been six years old in September. It was the opinion of many that the boy was playing with matches and caused the fire, while a few thought the fire possibly had originated from a spark of the passing train. Very little insurance was carried on any of the properties burned.

Mr. Smith has the sympathy of the entire community, not only for the loss of his grandson but also for the loss of all his personal property.

VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL

Again Does the "Unwritten Law" Win Out.

STATE OF MARYLAND

A Verdict of Acquittal was Returned in the Case of Mrs. Bowie and Son, Henry

FOR THE MURDER OF HUBERT POSEY

La Plata, Md., July 13.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Mollie Bowie and her son, Henry, who are on trial for the murder of Hubert Posey, who betrayed Miss Priscilla Bowie, daughter and sister respectively of the defendants, returned a verdict of acquittal Friday afternoon, after being out five minutes.

The verdict is the most direct and unqualified endorsement of the so-called unwritted law known in this section of the country in many years.

Mother and son both said without hesitation that they killed Posey and that they believe they did right.

The jury was out only long enough to take one ballot and stood unanimous for acquittal on the first vote. No argument or discussion was indulged in and Mrs. Bowie's statement that all she needed was "twelve Marylanders" was substantiated.

The reading of the verdict by the court clerk was greeted with cheers from all parts of the packed court room, save in one corner, where a small coterie of friends of Hugh Posey, father of the slain man, had congregated. Efforts of the court bailiff to stop the demonstration failed and the court room was cleared.

When the court convened Friday Congressman Sydney E. Mudd began his argument for the defense with the direct statement, "We place the defense in this case on what we call the unwritten law."

It has been known all along that this would be the defense but few doubted that some legal twists would be used to put a more formal front on the arguments.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

You Can Help Give the local News.

A dearth of local news often leads to murmurs on the part of those who prize local gossip above all else, and it is not at all the fault of the of the publisher. Any live publisher will not fail to give all the local news worthy of note, therefore when the local department is short you should not rail at the editor, but remember you might have committed suicide, gotten married, quarried with your neighbor, stole chickens, let your team run away, or a hundred other things to make local item.

If a newspaper should publish current street gossip, or the hints and allusion of the best society in the community it would be ostracized and the poor editor would be horsewhipped or burned to the stake. Think a minute of the mean and low things you say about your townsmen and your neighbor and imagine how it would look in print. Don't criticise the newspapers for what they print. A newspaper that contains one-half the current gossip among the best citizens would be considered unfit to read. Honest!

Improvements At Electric Light Plant

Improvements are now being made at the electric light plant in this place which will give the company a very much increased lighting power over what they now have. A three foot extension has been built on the eastern end of the building in which will be installed a new and larger, as well as more modern switch board. When the old board is removed from the northeast corner of the building a new set of dyamos will be installed there with a high power engine to run them. The wire service on the streets is also being improved by the putting up of new copper circuit wires. Next spring it is the intention of the company to build a new office building on the vacant lot recently purchased from Charles Schad, on the completion of which the present office will be converted into a stock room.

Sold To Winburn

Charles Scott, commonly known as Red Scott, Orvis' crack first baseman, has been sold to the Winburne ball clud. "Red" will be missed by his many friends at Orvis. He is know about the country as a high class, all round base ball player. Good luck to Red in his new field. Red Scott is one of our own town boys and we cannot help feel proud that he is making a success in the base ball world.

A SENTINEL KILLED

At Mount Gretna by a Passing Train.

Alfred Borland, aged 21, a private in Company E. Fourth regiment, was killed at Mount Gretna by a passing train while on duty on the line of the Cornwall and Lebanon railroad. He suddenly disappeared after the train passed on Monday night and on investigation by his comrades his mangeled body was found on the rails.

At the point where the accident took place there are many tracks and it is believed the sentinel became confused in the darkness and did not know on which track the train was coming. Private Strasser, H. G. Loy, a brother-in-law of the dead man, and privates Williams and Machamer, all of Company E. were appointed a guard of honor to escort the remains to Lebanon to be cared for by the undertaker and taken to the sorrow stricken home at Harriburg.

A movement is on in the regiment to have every officer and man donate a day's pay to the widowed mother of whom Borland was the only support. If successful, the purse will amount to about $1000.

Tyrone Merchants Getting In Line

For the encampment of the Second brigade, National Guard of Pennsylvania, beginning at Tipton on July 20 preparations are well in hand, and everything will be in readiness for the soldiers upon their arrival at the scene of their strenuous outing.

The P. R. R. company has installed a telephone service along the branch as far as the upper camp. Telephones will be placed at the upper and lower camp and in the station.

Tipton is getting very well painted up,—and it is not red paint either.

Col. Alexander Morrow already has his home decorated in honor of the encampment.

Major Anshutz, brigade quartermaster will arrive early in the week and be in command of the situation from that time on.

Howard Cherry is hauling in wood for the cook-house, of which there will be about sixty.

The water pipes have about all been laid in the camp and the general cleaning up is completed.

John Wilson, postmaster, general foreman and chief of carpenters, is the busiest man in Tipton these days.

E. B. Dysart has created quite a grove immediately back of the station. His trees all seem to grow.

The "Midway" bids fair to be the centre of interest. This magnificent 200-foot street extending from the station northward through the village will be a scene of activity and will only be rivaled by the famous "boardwalk" at Atlantic City.

Josh. Burley and Jacob H. Holtzinger have their location secured and are on the ground getting ready for business.

Windfall For Poor watchmaker

Harry Garman, a poor watchmaker, of Williamsport, has fallen heir to a tract of valuable timber and coal land near Sparta, Tenn., comprising over 10,000 acres, which is valued at several hundred thousands of dollars. The land was obtained by an uncle of his father, one John R. Boyer, in 1832 from the state of Tennessee, when the tract was considered practically worthless. Boyer died some thirty years ago, and attorneys at Sparta have been searching for the decendants of John R Boyer ever since.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our hearts, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

THE GREAT "WAR COMET."

Its Fiery, Spreading Tail Was Fifty Million Miles Long.

The wonderful "war comet" of 1861 sprang so suddenly into view and blazed with such unexampled brilliancy as to astonish the astronomers and frighten those unlearned in cometary lore half out of their wits. The unlearned declared that the civil war, which was just getting well under headway, must have something to do with it. However this may be, it burst forth, unheralded and uninvited, shining with greater brilliancy and magnitude than any phenomena of a similar nature which that generation had ever seen.

On the night of July 3 of that year it exhibited a most wonderful spectacle. In the evening the nucleus did not appear to be larger than a star in the first or second magnitude. As the small hours of the morning approached, however, the nucleus visibly increased in both magnitude and brilliancy. The tail waved back and forth over our little world in a most threatening manner, at times sending rays almost to the zenith. On the morning of July 5 the astronomers announced through the daily papers that the head of the great comet was only separated from the earth by a distance of 12,000,000 miles. According to the report sent out from the Cambridge observatory, the comet appears to have passed its ascending node between the 27th and the 29th of June in longitude 279 degrees, the longitude of the earth being 277 degrees at the same time.

On Oct. 10 its tail extended over a space of 50,000,000 miles and at several points was not less than 10,000,000 miles in width.

At first it was generally conceded that it was the famous comet of 1556, the one which caused the Emperor Charles V. of France to resign his imperial throne, he taking it to be a warning from God. All surmises were subsequently set at rest by the discovery that it was the famous Thatcher comet, discovered by Professor A. F. Thatcher at the Rutherford observatory in New York city.

A STRANGE MAKEUP.

When Wilton Lackaye Looked "Like a Sore Finger."

Barrett was a very pompous man, and as my bump of reverence has always been a concavity he early marked me out for his displeasure. After giving me a list of plays for which to procure wardrobes—plays which he did not do during the season—he suddenly changed his mind and put on "Julius Caesar" in Richmond, Va. It was impossible to get an armor there. I played Metellus Cimber, first citizen and Phasarius—and a soldier! Luckily I had sandals and fleshings. I borrowed a tunic from Otis Skinner, a toga from the stage manager, who was out of the bill; I had a mob shirt made in the theater; I got out a makeup for Phasarius, the barbarian, but the soldier? All of the utility men were compelled to "eke the battle rabble out" as soldiers in the last act. I could not get in the town a helmet and armor, so I simply "lurked" behind the other soldiers clad in fleshings, sandals and Skinner's tunic, which came halfway to my knees. I was then five feet eleven and three-fourths and weighed 130 pounds, so you may imagine the audience hardly became conscious of me until my third entrance.

My modest disposition and my desire not to meet the star's eye did not avail me. He spotted me the first thing. As the curtain came down he called me and thundered, "What do you think you represent?"

I shyly responded, "A camp follower, sir, lurking behind the main column and robbing the dead."

"Huh!" he grunted, his eye passing up my stretch of shanks in pink fleshings, surmounted by the tight little tunic at top. "You look like a sore finger!"—Wilton Lackaye in Bohemian Magazine.

A Dame School In England, 1837.

On a perch forming a triangle with the corner of the room sat a cock and two hens. Under a stump bed immediately beneath was a dog kennel in the occupation of three black terriers, whose barking, added to the noise of the children and the cackling of the fowls on the approach of a stranger, was almost deafening. There was only one small window, at which sat the teacher, obstructing three-fourths of the light it was capable of admitting.—Parliamentary Report.

The Number Three.

Three, which since the days of Pythagoras has been the divine number, is not invariably fortunate, for, though the fates are three, so also are the furies. The graces are three, but so also are the judges in hades and the heads of Cerberus. Then there are the records of three disloyal tribes in Welsh history; there are the three robbers in Orion's belt; there were the three tyrants at Athens, and 3 in mythology is as unlucky as it is divine.

One's Point of View.

"I liked that play we saw last night because it has a happy ending."

"Why, man, the husband in it terrorizes his wife into trembling and silent submission and ends by killing his mother-in-law!"

"I said it had a happy ending."—Baltimore American.

Extenuating.

A Frenchman was convicted of killing his mother-in-law. When asked if he had anything to say for himself before taking sentence, he said, "Nothing, excepting I lived with her twenty-one years and never did it before."

THE BREADFRUIT TREE.

Many Ways In Which This Strange Asiatic Plant Is Utilized.

The breadfruit tree is a native of southern Asia, the south Pacific islands and the Indian archipelago. In appearance it resembles somewhat the wild chestnut. It grows to the height of forty or fifty feet and has dark green leaves, many of them two feet in length, which are deeply divided into pointed lobes.

Hidden among the great leaves the breadfruit grows. It is a sorosis, is nearly spherical, often weighs four or more pounds and has a thick yellow rind. This fruit is the chief food of the south sea islanders. They seldom eat a meal without it. The eatable part lies between the rind and the core and when fully ripe is yellow and juicy. It is better for fruit before it has fully matured, and the natives gather it while the pulp is white.

Before it is ready for table use it must be roasted, when it looks like wheat and bread and is both palatable and nutritious. Usually the fruit is cut into three or four slices and roasted or baked in an oven.

Frequently the people of a village join in making a huge oven, in which several hundred breadfruits may be baked at one time. Thus they are all supplied with bread without its costing any of them much labor. Prepared in this way, the bread will keep for weeks.

The breadfruit is in season eight months of the year. When the season finally draws to a close, the last fruits are gathered and made into a sour paste called "mahei." This paste will keep good for months and is made into balls, wrapped in leaves and baked, just as needed.

Bread is not the only product of the breadfruit tree. From it cement, cloth, tinder and lumber are also obtained. A glutinous, milky juice oozes from the trunk of the tree, which makes an excellent cement when boiled with cocoanut oil. From the fibrous inner bark a kind of coarse cloth is made, and the big leaves make good towels. The lumber is used for building houses and many other purposes. Besides all this, the dried blossoms are used as tinder when fires are kindled.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Some people cry loudly for justice when mercy is really what they want.

There is never much kicking about the rules of the game by those who happen to win.

Granite, the Bedrock of the Earth.

Granite is the bedrock of the world. It is the lowest rock in the earth's crust and shows no signs of animal life. It is from two to ten times as thick as all the other layers of rocks combined. No evidences of life of either animal or vegetable are apparent in granite. The presence of lime is due to animal life. Some scientists assert that all the lime in the world has at some time been a part of some animal. This includes human beings.

Meeting of Creditors.

A meeting of the creditors of Lewis Beezer, M. J. Beezer, trading as "Beezer Brothers," "The Dimeling," and "The Clearfield Hotel Company" Bankrupts, was held at the Court House in Clearfield Wednesday morning of this week in answer to a call from Marion D. Patterson, Referee in Bankruptcy. The call stated that the meeting was for the purpose of "proving claims, appointing a Trustee and examining the bankrupts."

A majority of the creditors were present or represented by attorneys. The selection of a Trustee was the important feature and it soon developed that there was blood on the moon. One element backed Bugaboo Ben Chase; another Willie Swoope. After some discussion it was evident Swoope was ont of the running and that Bugaboo Ben was not acceptable to a majority. The name of Fred G. Bette was presented but the backers of Chase kicked. Several attempts were made to agree on a man acceptable to all interests without success. When it was apparent no agreement could be reached the meeting adjourned until Wednesday July 31, at which time it is hoped a Trustee agreeable to at least a majority of the creditors will be chosen. Those on the inside say "Neither Chase nor Swoope will be chosen."

Marries Prisoner in Sunbury Jail.

An unusual romance ended in the wedding in the county jail at Sunbury on the Fourth of Miss Caroline Haupt, of Lewisburg, and Willis Bozarth, who is serving a sentence for larcenoy, and gives his place of residence as Upper Alton, Ill.

Several weeks ago Miss Haupt went to Sunbury to witness the performance of a large circus, and while waiting for the hour of the opening of the show, decided to visit the county prison. While being shown through the different departments she met Bozarth, and it was a case of love at first sight. After Miss Haupt paid Bozarth several visits, the warden was surprised when they told him they wanted to marry.

The parlor of the jail was the scene of the wedding, and Rev. E. M. Gearhart, the jail chaplain, officiated. Bozarth has been in jail about one year and still has six months to serve. He is 28 and his bride 25 years of age.

A Sheriff and Some English Gypsies

One day in the Early forties, I was a little boy of nine years gathering flowers along the roadside near the city of Hastings, England. I was suddenly startled by the rushing on, coming of a gypsie wagon in which were two men and a woman or two. The man in the front was throwing bundles of willow wicker shots, fast as he could, over the hedge fence so they would drop down out of sight.

Very soon the wagon was relieved of its troublesome load and the gypsies slackened their pace. The wicker bundles the gypsies had stolen and the sheriff was closely upon them. Coming up with a dash he could see nothing of the stolen goods, either in the wagon or anywhere else.

Completely foiled by the gypsies the Sheriff returned to his home empty handed. Now, it is easy to see why I could not tell this story through the Daily News before the close of the gypsie carnival. There would have been suspicions; possibly detectives and there was a sheriff or two of them in that throng on the school commons on Wednesday evening. As it is in the outcome there is an income of $ from that jolly occasion for the Parrish House and everybody in Bellefonte is glad and hopes to be still more so by reason of the good that home may be the means of bringing to our town.

Merchants' Petition For The Big Picnic.

The management of Mill Hall park have presented a petition to the committee of the Clinton and Centre County Business Mens' association praying that the next inter-county picnic and meeting be held at Mill Hall park this year instead of at Hecla, as has been the custom for the past 10 years.

The petition is signed by about 75 business and professional men and it is their earnest desire that this county receive some consideration regarding the change. The park management will provide sufficient amusement for the big crowd that usually attends these annual outings.—Lock Haven Express.

COSUMPTION SANITARIUM

To be Erected in This Part of Pennsylvania

100,000 APPROPRIATED

For This Good cause Dr. Dixon Will Inspect The Mountainous District of This Section Dr. Detwiler gives An Interesting Statement,

LIKELY LOCATED NEAR WILLIAMSPORT

As was stated in the Gazette and Bulletin of Williamsport, Dr. B. H. Detwiler reported at the meeting of of the Lycoming Congress is being made on the Ellenton consumption hospital project and there is a possibility of land being donated for an institution to be conducted under state control. Dr. Detwiler has furnished the Gazette and Bulletin with the following interesting report of the state moyement to stamp out consumption:

The state has placed in the hands of Dr. Dixon, of the State Health Department, $400,000 for indigent tuberculosis patients, for their care and maintenance, and $600,000 for the erection of sanitaria at the discretion of Dr. Dixon, for the permanent care of the incurable of this class, and remove foci, or centers from which it has rediated for the past century.

With the first class of settlers. Quakers, Scotch Irish and Germans. of the West Branch and its tributaries at the junction of the West and North Branches of the Susquehanna, there came tuberculosis—just as it is now with the finer class of imported cattle, and it has become indigenous.

The remedy is not to cure the incipient cases, but have, as Dr. Dixon suggests, erected in sutiable localities sanitaria for the permanent care of all infected incurable cases, eliminating them from these centers and by this normal method stamp out this most deadly disease in incipiency. Dr. Dixon has expressed his intention of inspecting our mountainous districts to consider the advisability of having a state sanitaria for our people.

Flirted With The Wrong Man.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company has gotten tired of having their depot in Bellefonte being made the rendezvous for a crowd of girls whose only business there is to flirt and meet young men for purposes that are beneath a young lady who has respect for herself and family. The company has taken steps to break up this practice. The other day a young lady thought she was flirting with a drummer when she discovered that the victim of her eyes was a railroad policeman, who gave her some sound advice to promulgate to her friends.—Lock Haven Express.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Contractor Thomas Shoemaker.

Baltimore, Md., July 12.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company Friday awarded the contract for the construction of the sub-structure of the new double track bridge, across the Susquehanna river at Havre De Grace, Md., to the Eyre-Shoemaker Company of Philadelphia, and it is expected that the work will be started sometime this week.

The contract for the superstructure or steel work was awarded about six weeks ago to the American Bridge Company.

This bridge will be double tracked throughout, require about 45,000 cubic yards of masonry in the substructure and between 14,000 and 15,000 tons of steel work in the superstructure. It will be 7,900 feet in length—by far the largest bridge on the Baltimore and Ohio system—and require about three years to build, at a cost of about $2,000,000.

The work will be under the direction and personal supervision of three of the best railroad engineers in the country, D. D. Carothers, chief engineer; J. E. Greiner, assistant chief engineer, and A. M. Kinsman, engineer of construction.

"Our Poor Cresents."

The game on the Fourth was a case of Bellefonte boys handing our boys a lemon. The game was a farce throughout. So onesided was the contest, due to Bellefonte's inability to play ball, that the crowd of spectators walked away in disgust. Gramley, of Spring Mills, went to the rescue of the Bellefonte boys in the third inning, which checked the run-getting somewhat, otherwise Millheim might have reached the century mark in runs. Otto's playing was a feature. Millheim Journal.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.

THE TAXIDERMIST.

He Stretches Animal Skins Over Plaster of Paris Forms.

Recently a prominent taxidermist of St. Louis was taking a party of visitors through his establishment. He had some very rare specimens of big game fish, both of the sea and river, besides a large collection of birds of every clime about the walls.

"Is that stuffed, too?" asked a lady, indicating the lifelike form of a small pet dog which sat motionless upon the hearth.

The taxidermist frowned and returned very indignantly:

"Madam, we do no stuffing here. We stretch our hides over plaster of paris forms. The day of stuffing is past, and no up to date establishment does it."

The party was taken upstairs, through the rooms where the real taxidermy is done. They had expected to see hides being crammed full of sawdust, shavings and perhaps hair. No such thing was seen, however, and in place of this were men and boys molding out the forms of deer, antelope, fish and other kinds of animals in the smooth white plaster. This is done very much in the same way as the terra cotta cornices are molded to grace the corners of buildings. The hides after going through the cleaning process are stretched tightly over the plaster form, which indeed is more lasting than the old fashioned manner of stuffing them.

"Even specimens of fish are treated in this manner," resumed the taxidermist, "and you may easily see how a skin would retain its shape a great deal longer over the hard, smooth surface of the plaster than if a softer material were crammed into it, which if improperly done will bulge and last but a short time."—Exchange.

Lincoln's Last Law Case.

Lincoln tried his last case in Chicago. It was the case of Jones versus Johnson in April and May, 1860, in the United States circuit court before Judge Drummond. The case involved the title to land of very great value, the accretion on the shore of Lake Michigan. During the trial Judge Drummond and all the counsel on both sides, including Lincoln, dined together at the house of Isaac N. Arnold.

At the conclusion of the dinner this toast was proposed: "May Illinois furnish the next president of the United States." It was drunk with great enthusiasm by the friends of both Lincoln and Douglas. — Chicago Record-Herald.

The Wary Crow.

The crow is useful in killing mice, snakes, lizards and frogs and is a splendid scavenger. He is quite wary, will always flee from a man with a gun, but pays little attention to the ordinary pedestrian. These birds are gregarious in their habits and make their large, untidy nests at the tops of trees. They come in flocks to the sleeping grove, sit around on the ground, and when all are assembled they rise simultaneously and scramble for nests. Crows mate for life.

Jolly Camping Crowd Out.

This time of the year most everyone feels like going camping, the mountains and streams are right in their beauty, and very attractive. A bunch of the Undine Fire Co. fellows are having an outing up near the "Willows" and from all reports the boys are having a royal good time. They expect to be there about 10 days, those who are enjoying the camp life are the following: William Cunningham, Geo. Doll, Henry Brown, Charles Anderson, Fern Showers Frank Doll, James McSuly, Edward Gillen, William Doll, Joe Wise, Jim Lowry, Bruce Garbrick and Dan Kelley.

Life.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist, for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the riches blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

By gosh if I aint gladder to get home than a boy is when he gets his first pair of boots with red leather tops on. You see we have been away for over a week, that is Sarah and I. She was afraid to et me go alone so she went with me to take care and see that I did not flirt with the girls. We started away on the fourth and stopped at Hecla Park long enough to have my watch taken and lose a dollar on the big wheels, then we went to Williamsport and it cost over ten dollars to ride on the street car, Sarah liked it so much I guess she would be there yet on the cars if we would have had time to stay longer. Then she thought of those boys that took our green apples and she said she knew that they would get the "cold marbles" anyhow. I said you mean the "colora morbus" dont you? Well she said what ever you call it. We got on board the train for Philadelphia and I just had to sit and watch the girls. They would put back some of their hair, then push their comb in, then straighten their hair, then finger their belt buckle then push back their hair, then look at me, then I just could not stand it, and said to Sarah, if that girl aint in love with me, then I don't know my onion. Well, said she, your onion is off its. "auto pop" you better get some kind of a spraying machine and kill some of the canker worms in your upper story. I just told her she had rats in her attic that I knew a nice thing when I saw it, as I had a queer feeling around the exterier of my heart and that it was better felt than told. The first stop, just as the girl was going out the car door she threw a big bunch of flowers at me. I think they call it Montgomery. Well Sarah would not speak to me till we got to Philadelphia, then she wanted to get some money. Then the silence was broken and she began, there is Sis Brown wearing that old hat that she wore six years ago, chewing her ground nuts. Come on Jones up street and we will get some mint stick and have a good time.

But as I was going to say the pleasure of going away "was the plessure of coming home." Our hired girl just made the preacher stay at our house ever since we left, to help do the chores. He had gained about twenty pounds, but we missed twenty of our best chickens But it was so funny our girl walked on her tip toes all the time and when Sarah asked what was the matter she said she had eaten so much puffed rice that she felt like an angel and if she had little wings she could fly.

"A burnt child dreads fire" that is, most children do, some seem to enjoy it and a few is willing to and take the risk of getting burnt.

But that aint my case, a jypsy woman called at our house and said if our women would give her the best brama hen on the farm she would tell their fortunes, so nothing would do but they had their fortunes told. Sarah said the jypsy told her if she would ever draw in a lottery she would be lucky." I said yes you would Sarah, well she just sent a dollar to a fellow who advertised a receipt to prevent bad dreams she got a reply "don't go to sleep." I thought that would cure her, but no she sent some money for a lottery ticket and was lucky enough to draw a wash rubber and upon receipt of a dollar to pack same it would be forwarded to her, the girl—well, about the only thing the jypsy told her was that she had the "take off," a disease prevalent among the germans. I started out for the clothes line and was going to measure her but I could not think of the words I was to say then Sarah said she would look after her, I said the next time I ketch jypsies I caught around here I would have arrested. I had just come from market and had to give an account of my sales which was three bunch onions 15 cents, three bunch lettuce 15 cents, less license 15 cents, one soda 5, balance 10 cents, now Jones I don't think that pays, when our garden needs hoeing so bad and we have to hire men to do the farm work, well said I how are we to make a living then, then Sarah wilted just like a mullin stock cut down in the hay field about the time the dinner bell would ring.

When I came home that night Sarah was in the room trying to kick the chandelier, I said what does all this mean she was so mad she said a detective was here and inquired about this and that when I learned that he was a U. S. P. O. detective, I told her to keep cool that I had employed him as there was a great mystery to solve then I had to explain that it was a case of "blackmail" of the blackest kind, blacker than a stack of black cats in the dark of the moon at midnight. I said I received by mail in poultry and I considered it scandalus and meant to have the parties punished if the P. O. official would take time to hunt it up after the trout fishing season closed; just then Pat McDonnell come in and wanted to know how I would like a job of car expecting, but I said I did not care to moove off the farm as we were just setting a lot of flowers out, roses and hollyhocks and all the new kinds, then Bill Lyons drove up and wanted to know our favorite flowers I said the girls was Sweet Williams, Sarah liked sweet Alice, but my favorite was the sweet pea although I could look at lady slippers

REAR ADMIRAL BROWNSON.

New Chief of the Bureau of Navigation Is Brave and Cool Headed.

Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, who was recently ordered to Washington to assume the duties of chief of the bureau of navigation, was last summer honored with the important command of the Asiatic fleet. Present conditions have made it desirable that the officer in charge of the naval force of the United States stationed in the orient should be a man of exceptional ability and excellent judgment. Admiral Brownson earned promotion by his wise and tactful course while on duty in the far east. The admiral, who was born at Lyons, N. Y., in 1845 and graduated twenty years later from the Naval academy, is a good type of the American naval officer, a type which has won admiration in all the countries of the world. He has given evidence of his nerve and cool headedness on several notable occasions. As a young man of twenty-five he achieved the distinction of ridding the Pacific coast of a band of pirates which for some time had terrorized that part of the sea. In his encounter with the Brazilian insurgent, Admiral Mello, during the revolution of 1893 in the republic of Brazil he fired one shot from the Detroit, which was sufficient to convince the insurgent commander that the American officer meant business and that American interests must not be imperiled. Twelve years of the admiral's career have been spent in teaching and training the students of the Naval academy, as instructor in mathematics, assistant commandant, commandant and superintendent. He commanded the Yankee during the Spanish war.

COREY-GILMAN.

The Head of the Steel Trust and His Beautiful Bride.

The nuptials of Mabelle Gilman, the actress, and William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation, have been the subject of almost as much talk as the marriage of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth or of King Alfonso of Spain and the Princess Victoria. Mr. Corey is forty-three years of age and is head of the United States Steel corporation, commonly known as the steel trust. He was re-elected to this post for the third time but a few days ago. Miss Gilman is a daughter of Charles H. Gilman of San Francisco, and her career on the stage has been full of incidents that have caused her to be talked about. She has had admirers by the score, and her affair with the crown prince of Siam won her much publicity. The love letters and poems the prince wrote describing his passion found their way into print and proved a great boon to Miss Gilman's press agent.

Mr. Corey began his career in the steel business when he entered the chemical laboratory of the Edgar Thomson Steel works at sixteen. His rise to influence in this concern and in the great steel making industry was rapid, and he succeeded Charles M. Schwab as president of the Carnegie Steel company. In 1903 he stepped into Schwab's shoes again as head of the United States Steel corporation. It was in 1905 that Mr. Corey sat in a box in a Pittsburg theater and heard Miss Gilman sing in "The Mocking Bird." That was the first time he saw her, and from that time on his attentions to her caused comment. They finally led to an estrangement between him and his first wife, who was Miss Laura Cook. She filed a petition for divorce in June, 1906, and obtained a decree at Reno, Nev., in July of the same year. Mr. Corey was then said to have settled $2,000,000 on her and her sixteen-year-old son.

Early Dentistry.

The art of dentistry was practiced among the Egyptians and Etruscans, and there are evidences in mummies and skulls that in very ancient times teeth were filled and efforts were made to supply the loss of natural by artificial teeth. The first writer on the treatment of diseased teeth was Galen. The science was introduced into America by John Greenwood, who established himself in New York in 1788. In 1790 and again in 1795 he carved in ivory an entire set of teeth for General Washington.

In a German Law Court.

A German law court was the scene lately of an amusing incident. The magistrate, a tiresome and long winded person, was deciding a small case in which the plaintiff claimed damages for abuse. "To call a man a 'pig' or a 'dog,'" replied the judge, "is certainly an insult, but to say that he is a 'pig-dog' is offensive, for no such animal exists." The plaintiff glared at the bench. "Schweine-Hund!" he remarked, with bitter emphasis.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Alabaster Ornaments.

The best method of cleaning any alabaster ornament is to first remove any grease with spirits of turpentine and then to place the article in water for ten minutes or a little longer if very dirty. Next rub all over with a painter's brush and leave to dry. Then rub again with a soft brush dipped in plaster of paris.

WOLF.

Stories of His Man Eating Feats Said to Be Untrue.

A skeptical person calling himself St. Croix has been trying to find out whether wolves and bears are maligned by the popular stories of their man eating ways and writes his conclusions for Recreation.

First he tried running down the stories told in newspaper dispatches. Foiled in this effort, he turned to the Indians. They knew the gray wolf, having wintered and summered with him. Had they ever known of an Indian being killed by one? N-no, but Mingan was very crafty and very much to be dreaded.

Quite so. But, once for all, had he ever to their knowledge killed a man? No, but they had heard— So it went—always the same intangible, unconfirmed rumor and the same absence of proof.

"Now for a few facts as to the wolf," writes St. Croix. "He can go eight days without food and can then eat forty pounds of meat at a sitting, so the Indians say. This is pretty fair for an animal weighing but eighty pounds. Yet we do not know the length of the sitting.

"The wolf will not venture on glare ice; he never crosses a lake until there is enough snow to hide the ice. To wetting his feet he is as averse as the domestic cat. He will not kill his game in the shelter of the forest, always driving it into some open place for the kill.

"When chasing a deer, he goes at a leisurely lope, sitting down at intervals to give the most dolorous and bloodcurdling howls. This drives the poor victim into a wild gallop and soon exhausts it, and as the wolf never tires he is sure sooner or later to catch up with the quarry.

"In winter the deer often makes for some wild rapid, into which it plunges, knowing that the wolf will not follow. Too often the deer drowns, but better such a death than one by the fangs.

"In summer a couple of wolves will secure all the deer they need by very simple tactics. Having put up the quarry, one wolf drives it by easy stages to some little lake—I speak now of the Laurentian country—and on reaching the shore the deer plunges unhesitatingly in, for its instinct tells it the enemy will not dare to follow.

"So on it swims, while the pursuer sits on his haunches and howls dismally, no doubt because he sees his dinner escaping. At length the tired deer drags itself wearily from the water and shakes the drops from its coat on the sun warmed strand. Then the companion wolf, which has waylaid its coming, springs at its throat, and when the first wolf joins him they have a gorge that makes them independent of fate for a whole week."

MRS. JOHN W. TIMMONS.

The Handsome and Clever Daughter of the Vice President.

Lieutenant John W. Timmons of the United States navy, who has been charged with important duties in connection with the expenditure of the large sum recently appropriated for submarine boats, married a daughter of Vice President Fairbanks. As Miss Fairbanks the present Mrs. Timmons was very popular in Indiana society and also at the nation's capital, and after acquiring a naval officer as a husband she added many wearers of the naval uniform to her circle of friends. Mrs. Timmons is naturally interested in the art of war and is herself an excellent pistol shot. She takes great delight in shooting at a mark with a revolver, and as she has keen sight and steady nerves few men can excel her in handling the weapon. Some time ago her husband, then an ensign in the navy and on duty aboard the battleship Kearsarge, was stricken with typhoid fever while visiting a town in Italy. She hastened to his beside and nursed him until he recovered his health.

C. W. Fairbanks

Interesting Career of a Republican Presidential Candidate—Born In an Ohio Log Cabin and a Hoosier by Adoption — His Early Struggles For Success.

THE fact that Vice President Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana is one of the leading candidates for the Republican nomination for president makes his personality of interest to people of all sorts of political persuasions. He is noted, among other things, for his dignity, his physical height and his serious demeanor. He is more than six feet two inches tall, and his customary attire rather intensifies the impression of length his figure gives, for he always wears a frock coat and a hat which adds to his height. He has broad shoulders and long, sinewy arms, which have not lost the strength they gained when their owner was a boy on a farm, for, like so many other men who have been in the presidential race. Mr. Fairbanks was born in a log cabin and had the good fortune to learn how to till the soil before he took up the study of the ancient languages and the various ologies. It is considered an auspicious omen by his friends that he was born in Ohio, the "mother of presidents," and the most ardent of Hoosiers forgive him for not being a native of the commonwealth when they recall that he settled in it as soon as he reached manhood.

Mr. Fairbanks is what is generally described as a self made man—that is, he had no one to boost him along, and what he has attained in life is the result of his own industry and ambition, aided by the kindly sympathy and cooperation of his talented wife, with whom he fell in love when both were students at Ohio Wesleyan college at Delaware, O. It is related that when he entered college all that he possessed was one suit of clothes and $41 in cash. Early in his career as a student he had the misfortune to rip the leg of his one pair of trousers. The rent was too bad to be quickly repaired, and it was Saturday evening. Next morning he would have to be present at chapel or be marked for absence. Without a cent in his pocket he went to a clothier and selected a new pair, priced at about

VICE PRESIDENT CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

$2.50, and was about to walk off with them, saying he would pay for them Monday morning, when he was stopped by the merchant, who said he did not do business that way. Young Fairbanks was angry and went to another store, where he explained the circumstances and obtained the much needed apparel on trust. The confidence of the storekeeper was rewarded, for he obtained a lifelong friend.

Vice President Fairbanks does not drink or smoke. The only occasion on record when he took a drink of whisky was the time that he was in a runaway accident in Chicago. He was thrown out of a carriage and severely shaken up, and some one made him swallow some juice of the corn. Speaking of the matter afterward, the vice president said: "I can taste it yet. Do you really mean to tell me that people enjoy the taste of that compound?"

Mr. Fairbanks is an early riser. "The men who are doing the work of the world are those who get up early and work late," he once said. "That is the way our country was built." And Mr. Fairbanks fits the description. He is industry personified. He finds his recreation in change of occupation. He does not play tennis or golf or games of that kind, but likes the sort of exercise he used to get on the farm, and when a tree on his grounds needs felling and chopping up he enjoys nothing better than getting at it with ax and saw. Mr. Fairbanks was asked if he remembered the log cabin in which he was born fifty-five years ago and which had been built by his father, who was a farmer and wagon maker when the latter first settled in Union county, O. "I am no draftsman," replied the vice president, "but I could make a picture of it today. It had but one large room and a loft over it. There was a stone chimney at one end and a fireplace within, where the cooking was done over a crane. There were two beds in the room, and we had two beds also in the attic. These sufficed for the family until my father had made enough to build a larger house." While the new house was building young Charles accidentally set fire to the cabin. It was destroyed, and the future vice president came near being burned up with it.

Friends Were Alarmed— Advised Change of Climate.

Miss Mildred Keller, 718 13th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I can safely recommend Peruna for catarrh. I had it for years and it would respond to no kind of treatment, or if it did it was only temporary, and on the slightest provocation the trouble would come back.

"I was in such a state that my friends were alarmed about me, and I was advised to leave this climate. Then I tried Peruna, and to my great joy found it helped me from the first dose I took, and a few bottles cured me.

"It built up my constitution, I regained my appetite, and I feel that I am perfectly well and strong."-Mildred Keller.

THE GYPSY CARNIVAL

First Afternoon and Evening a Wonderful Success.

The good folks of the St. John's Episcopal Church are right there with the goods when it comes to having a carnival or anything in that line. It seems as though everything went right their own way and success could not help be the result of the affair. We never saw the school commons look prettier than they did on Wednesday evening and the crowd was right there with the money to buy. The grounds were beautifully lit up by large arc lights and fires and when a person wandered in among the tents and wagons, you really did think that a bunch of gypsies of the higher class had invaded the town and that every one was curious to see what they looked like. Large wagons had been placed in a semi-circle and the tents pitched in a manner that gave the place the appearance of a typical gypsy camp. The Colevile band was present and from a high platform played their excellent music that was greatly appreciated by the large number of people present.

The Y. M. C. A Glee Club delighted the audience with several beautiful selections. The boys did well last evening and pleased every one on the grounds.

The "Confetti" man was around and the little bits of paper certainly did look pretty flying through the air and falling on the fair maidens.

Ice Cream, Cake, Candy, and other refreshments were sold and from the large patronage, the church people must have cleared a real nice sum of money. The Camp will be opened again tonight and in case of rain they will go into the Armory. It you did not get there last evening, it would be plessant to attend tonight, for we feel sure you will enjoy the whole affair.

Y. M. C. A, at Camp.

Some thirteen years ago the Young Men's Christian association of Pennsylvania, through its state committee inaugurated what is known as the National Guard association work, and the success which the work met with in the succeeding years demonstrated the wisdom of the state committee in planning the work.

Each year a large tent is erected with each brigade of the National Guard, when the citizen soldiery go into camp, and it is equipped with reading matter, games, writing materials, etc., and presents a most attractive and healthy place of resort in the camp. This year the Second brigade will encamp at Tipton, Blair county, July 20-27, and the association will have its tent erected, as usual, and the boys will find it to be a place where they will be given a most hearty welcome.

C. M. Meserve, of Bellefonte will have charge of the Y. M. C. A., Tent.

BELLEFONTE ACADEMY.

The wheeling Daily News had the Following to say.

How would you like to go to school in the mountains?

How would you like to wake up in the morning where pouring brooks are swirling their way along flag-grown banks of gree, singing their song of laughter over pebbly banks and sunbrowned rocks?

I guess that would not be delightful eh?

Bellefonte is up in Centre county, Pennsylvania. Professor James R. Hughes knows all about boys. He knows all that boys like to do and he knows all that they don't like to do. knows how to get all the good out of them and he knows how to make them love to be good both in mind and body. He only takes a limited number of students and, Mr. Father, you will do the wise thing for that growing, prosperous looking boy of yours if you will write to James R. Hughes, at Bellefonte, Centre county, Pennsylvania, for one of his catalogues right now—today.

This seems to be the school for the boys of Wheeling and vicinity. Last year ten of our boys attended this academy, and all speak of it in most complimentary terms of its location, its students, its faculty and the thorough personal work done for every boy. The old boys will return and at least eight new ones. The same work is done by the Bellefonte Academy that Lawrenceville and other schools undertake and yet at the moderate price of $400 per year.

DEATH OF MRS. WILLIAM SMITH.

Passed Peacefully Away Wednesday Morning.

Wednesday at 2 o'clock the angel death entered the Smith home at Millheim and called away the good wife and mother.

NOTES

Each school is entitled to two delegates in addition to the pastor and the superintendent. The names of these should be sent, not later than Friday, July 26th, earlier if possible, to Mrs. Cleyan Dinges, Bellefonte, in order that arrangements may be made for their free entertainment. Delegates coming, on the morning trains of Tuesday will report at the Chapel of the Presbyterian Church.

The speakers named on the program are limited to twenty minutes; following them ten minutes will be given to a general discussion open to all S. S. workers.

All officers are exected to make reports as to wark done and conditions in their departments. Each of the twelve districts should make a report through some officer.

An important meeting of the Executive Committee will be held in the Presbyterian Chapel at 9:30 a. m. of Tuesday.

Make announcement of the Convention to your school and pray for its success.

If a statistical card is enclosed it means that no report has been received from your school. Please see that the blanks are filled and card at once returned to the Secretary in order that a correct report may be made to the Convention and to the State Association.

If your school has not already sent an offering of at least two cents per member to the Treasurer, be sure to bring it with you to the Convention.

While you are at it you had better get two tickets for "The Coming of Ruth," one for the Opera House and one for the Petrikin Hall.

PENNSYLVANIA R R. CO.

After the Bald Eagle Valley—Many Stock Holders in Bellefonte.

Philadelphia July 11.—On a proportion of three to one with an added cash bonus of fifty dollars a share, the Pennsylvania railroad campany has decided to make an offer to the minority shareholders of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad company.

The Pennsylvania now owns the controlling interest in the road, which is a leased line, and has been operated as a part of the Pennsylvania system since 1864.

It was announced Tuesday that the P. R. R. was considering the advisability of making an offer for the minority holdings. Wednesday the decision was reached and in the afternoon circulars were mailed to the holders of Bald Eagle Valley specifying the terms and conditions under which the Pennsylvania desires to acquire their holdings. The offer of purchase is on the basis of exchanging three shares of Pennsylvania stock and $50 dollars in cash for each share of Bald Eagle Valley.

As these terms are generally considered in the financial district to be decidedly advantageous, it is expected that the Bald Eagle shareholders will take up the offer. The par value of Bald Eagle Valley, for instance, is $50 a share. It is a a 10 per cent dividend stock and was recently quoted at 170. Pennsylvania is also a par value of $50. It is on a seven cent dividend basis and today on the local Stock Exchange was selling around 62. Based on these quotations the terms offered by the Pennsylvania is equivalent to $246 a share.

The wish of the Pennsylvania to take over the Bald Eagle Valley is in line with its policy to merge all its smaller controlled line into its system. It was incorporated in 1861 and was leased to the Pennsylvania for 98 years in 1864. The line operated from Vail station to Lock Haven, with branches of 941 miles long. There 2502 miles of sidings. Capt. John P. Green, first vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad is its president. The outstanding stock of the authorized issue of $2,600,000 is $1,535,000.

"The Pennsylvania railroad company, the owner of a majority of the capital stock of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad company, whose road has been operated as a part of the Pennsylvania railroad system since 1864, deems it desirable to acquire the outstanding shares not now owned by it and make the Bald Eagle Valley railroad a part of the physical railroad property owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad company and thereby obtain greater economy in its operation and accounting. Its revenues are largely derived not from traffic originating upon its own lines, but from that passing over the road to and from portions of the Pennsylvania railroad system.

"After a consultation with the leading representatives of the outstanding shares, and with their approval, the Pennsylvania Railroad company has offered to purchase the outstnding stock of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad company on the basis of exchanging three (3) shares of its own capitol stock and $50 in cash for each share of stock of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad company of such outstanding stock, shall be deposited with the treasurer of the Pennsylvania Railroad company not latter than September 14, 1907."

A Wonderful Record.

As made up by improved and exact processes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. It cures the backache, periodical headaches the dragging-down distress in the pelvic region, the pain and tenderness over lower abdominal region, dries up the pelvic catarrhal drain, so disagreeable and weakening, and overcomes every form of weakness incident to the organs distinctly feminine.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women the makers of which print their formula on the bottle-wrapper, thus taking their patrons into their full confidence. It is the only medicine for women, every ingredient of which has the strongest possible endorsement of the most eminent medical practitioners and writers of our day, recommending it for the disease for which "Favorite Prescription" is advised.

The Tallest Corn in Centre county.

There are five preachers living on Spring street, Bellefonte. They are most of them fairly good gardners and chicken raisers. One of them is having a contest with a woman farmer living near Blanchard to see which of them has the tallest corn this present week. The successful contestant will be known before next Sunday. At six p. m. yesterday, the preacher's corn measured 7½ inches to the tip of the longest blade. If any body doubts it, he says with Nathaniel in the Gospel. "Come and see."

Bressler Signs With Winburn.

The Philipsburg Journal says that Rube Bressler, the well known Williamsport Tri-State pitcher, has signed with Winburn and began work for that team in the game at Philipsburg Wednesday.

An Ideal Spot For The Brigade Encampment.

For the first time in four years the Commander-in-chief of the National Guard of Pennsylvania will inspect the regimeots of the second brigade on horseback. Gov. Stuart is said to be a skilled equestrian and rides a thoroughbred, as do his aides. Gov. Pennypacker did not ride a horse and therefore drove around the camp in an open carriage, several of his aides being compelled to ride with him.

The fact that Gov. Stuart will add military distinction to the second brigade camp at Tipton by riding a horse is a matter of gratification to the soldiers. They have invited many of their Pittsburgh friends to be present on Thursday, when the Commander-in-chief will review the brigade, and Gov. Stuart and his aides, with all their gold trimmings, will make an imposing sight as they ride in front of 5,000 men.

Everything is now in readiness for the departure of the Pittsburg regiments and Battery B on Thursday evening. They will gather at their armories and march to Union depot, where special trains will leave at 10 o'clock for Tipton. So far very few of the soldiers have asked for leave of absence during the encampment and, with the additional musters in the various companies, Camp Homer H. Lindsay promises to be a record breaker.

The quartermaster of the Fourteenth, Eighteenth and Battery B, with the advance details, have arranged to leave Wednesday night at 10 o'clock and will have everything in readiness by Friday morning. Little trouble will be experienced in laying out the camp this year, since it is an ideal spot. Water mains extend along the streets of the various regiments and pure water from Tipton run will be available.

A plan of the camp which was issued last week, gives an idea of the delightful spot where the soldiers will spend their 10 days. Near the village of Tipton and not far from the Juniata river to the right of the public road, Battery B, Troop F and the Sheridan troop will be situated. Next will come the Fifth and the Sixteenth regiments. Then there is a woods after which come the Eighteenth, Fourteenth and Tenth in the order named. To the right of the road is the drill ground, a level tract about 2,000 by 1,500 feet. At the extreme end, situated so that a view may be had of the entire camp, is the brigade headquarters.

Cavalry maneuvers by the troops will be a feature of the camp, the space being ample to accommodate both troops at once. Battery B will indulge in target practice and will attempt to level to the ground a lime kiln. The infantrymen will make a grand appearance in their new United States uniforms and with their new guns.

The soldiers are prepairing to entertain a record breaking crowd on Sunday, when thousands will take advantage of the low excursion rates from Pittsburg and Altoona, 10 miles east. Thursday when the governor will inspect the regiments, will also be a big day from present indications.

At 92 Underwent an Operation

The oldest patient yet admitted to the Joseph Ratti hospital at Bloomsburg and possibly one of the oldest who ever underwent an operation at any hospital in that section of the state, was William Moser, of Pine Summit, aged 92 years, who was admitted to the hospital and underwent an operation for hernia. He came out from under the influence of the anaesthetic in good shape and his condition is very favorable.

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

A Grain of Sand on the Beach.

A couple of years ago a cranky sort of an old man came into this office and stopped his paper because something in it did not just suit his fancy. We have frequently met him on the street since that time and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on the old fellow's face that we are still in existance regardless of the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day—and it won't be long either—that old man will turn up his toes. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless body to the silent city and lay him to rest among the flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a kind father, a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was—which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake and in a very short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out their in the cold cold graveyard wrapped in the silent slumber of death, he will never know that the last kind word spoken of him was by the editor of that paper which in life he spitefully "stopped." Did you ever pause just a moment and think that your editor, whoever he may be, may write your obituary some day.

AN UNPROTESTED CHECK.

By Edith M. Doane.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

When all the legal formalities were ended and the fortune that had been Robert Maxwell's was finally handed over to his "beloved daughter Elizabeth," that young lady regarded her new found responsibilities in dismay and promptly proceeded to shift them to other and broader shoulders. James Gordon had been her father's secretary and his shoulders were presumably better fitted for the burden.

"But you cannot hand me over your fortune to carry, as if it were a book or a parcel," said Gordon distractedly, though inexpressibly cheered by this profession of confidence. "You do not understand"—

"Oh, yes, I do," returned Miss Maxwell serenely. "I understand perfectly. I shall appoint you"—

"Chairman of the finance committee," suggested Gordon.

"Yes," said Miss Maxwell. "I will be the committee."

"Well, I shall do my best," said Gordon, laughing. "But the committee will please remember that it has certain active duties."

"I don't see why it should have any," she retorted. "Practically, you have already managed the estate for the past five years. You were invaluable to father."

"Perhaps I was," Gordon returned, "though I don't remember it, and he never mentioned it. However, I appreciate your confidence and will serve you faithfully; but (g vely) what if I should make mistake Is it wise to intrust the handling of so much money to one man?"

"I should think it might depend a good deal upon the man," said Miss Maxwell softly.

So Gordon fitted up an office in a downtown skyscraper, where he sat at a table strewn with papers and pink-taped, legal looking documents, figuring and writing late into the nights, and Miss Maxwell, having arranged her financial affairs to her liking, annexed a meek, elderly relative as chaperon and turned her attention to other difficulties.

Her first, chiefest and most immediate difficulty was her cousin Tom Cornish.

"It isn't that I do not like you," she painstakingly explained for the hundredth time. "You know I do. As a sister, now, I"—

"Oh, drop it!" retorted Tom inelegantly.

"And anyhow I shall never marry."

"So it's all up?"

"I think I have been telling you that for the past five minutes," said Miss Maxwell impatiently.

"You know what I meant all along," he said sullenly. "Some one has been giving you a resume of my vices."

"Your vices are nothing to me nor your virtues either. If you"— The words died on her lips. For the first time in all their lives his arm closed around her. Convulsively he held her to him, bending his head till his lips met her soft brown hair.

"Betty, I—I've got to—tell you—I'm in no end of trouble. I need you—I need your help—I"—

By a single vehement effort Betty released herself.

"How dare you? How dare you?" she raged, then came to a dead stop. Her eyes grew wide with dismay and fixed upon the doorway at the end of the room.

"Mr. Gordon," she said in a constrained voice.

It was Gordon indeed. He was quite at the other end of the long room, but not so far that the late tableau could be unseen by him, and the distress of her face was intensified in his as he bowed hurriedly and the yellow portiere fell behind him.

Betty blushed furiously. A person looking on and not understanding might, of course—she turned suddenly to Tom, who stood staring at her uneasily.

"Now go!" she cried desperately. "Go!"

Meanwhile Gordon had found his hat and the sidewalk and walked blindly down the avenue, forgetting the papers he had gone for—forgetting everything except a girl's flushed, dismayed face. It was scandalous that she should be allowed to drift into complications with that fellow. It was all very well that Cornish was her cousin, but what of the fellow's character—a gambler, a fortune hunter? Yet what could he do? All day he had looked forward to seeing Betty. Well, he had seen her. And she must have been in earnest. She wasn't the kind of girl to let a man—and as memory gripped him he plunged gloomily on.

It was several days later that Miss Maxwell, blue gowned and demure, turned into the entrance of a bank on lower Broadway and walked calmly to the paying teller's window.

"I suppose you know that this overdraws your account, Miss Maxwell," said that gentleman, handing out a packet of fresh bank notes.

The girl stared at him in astonishment. "No, I did not know. I had not thought," she said nervously.

"That last check was rather large—ten thousand"—

"Ten thousand!" repeated Betty weakly.

"Yes. We did not question it, of course, because Mr. Gordon so often draws large amounts." He looked at her keenly. "It was all right, I suppose?"

"Yes; oh, yes," said Betty unsteadily. "It was all right. I—I suppose Mr. Gordon cashed it?"

"He sent a messenger, as he usually does."

Betty nodded. The bank swam and for an instant her brain reeled as she turned away, perplexed and vaguely conscious of impending evil.

Ten thousand dollars!

Even to Betty's vague business reasoning $10,000 seemed a good deal to lose track of. But there must be some good reason why Gordon had filled in the check for so much, for Miss Maxwell's methods of dealing with the management of her estate had not changed, and, though she still signed all her checks, she serenely washed her hands of further responsibility, and Gordon usually filled them in.

Once at home she hurried to her desk. She had a prejudice against keeping her check book in order, and an appalling number of hastily scrawled stubs confronted her. She worked busily, covering a pad with figures and counting up totals on her fingers. But it was slow work, and near the end one stub stared out from the rest provokingly.

It was blank.

She leaned her elbows on the desk and, resting her chin in her hands, stared hard into space. There was the check unaccounted for, and he had filled it out for $10,000. No one knew how many others he had used. He was welcome to the money. She would not fight it if she could. But he had seemed so different, and she had trusted him. Slowly her head sank on the desk, and the heiress of the Maxwell millions cried her eyes out like any ordinary lovesick girl.

It was ten hours later—ten dreary, interminable hours—that the clock on Betty's dressing table chimed 1.

Betty shivered. No sleep had come to her eyes. Getting out of bed, she slipped into a dressing gown. She would read. Anything would be better than lying in bed open eyed and sleepless moaning over James Gordon.

Her book was in the library. She opened her door and ran hurriedly down into the hall below. Pushing open the library door very gently, she entered the room, then uttered a faint scream.

The room was lighted by the faint rays of a bullseye lantern.

Standing at her desk with his back to her, opening her check book, was —Tom Cornish.

Starting convulsively at sound of her cry, he turned and confronted her, white to the lips. "Betty," he stammered.

Miss Maxwell stood very still.

"Tom," she said, "why did you do it?"

But Tom had fallen into a chair and hidden his shamed face in his hands.

"It's all up," he said hoarsely. "I'm dead broke, and I thought I stood a chance to stake myself once more. I've had the devil's own luck lately. I lost every cent of that other check."

Betty looked at him as if in a dream.

"The check—your check. I was dead broke—debts everywhere—and I got hold of your check book. I knew Gordon did about as he pleased—and it was your signature all right. I meant to give it back to you, Betty, as soon as my luck turned, I really did."

But to his mystification Betty was looking at him with shining eyes. "It was you who cashed the check for ten thousand," she repeated softly. "It was you—it was you."

It was weeks before she told Gordon, and he, being a wise young man in his generation, said no word of her bygone injustice, but his arms went round her, and he held her close, while she, crying quietly, hid her face against his coat.

"No other man would have understood," she whispered softly.

The true strength of every human soul is to be dependent on as many nobler as it can discern and to be depended upon by as many inferior as it can reach.—Ruskin.

THE SPECTER SWIMMER.

A Legend of the Sea That Still Appeals to Sailors.

The sailor as a class still holds fast to the superstitions that have been his especial heritage throughout all ages. To him the sea is still peopled with phantoms. Men there are still who sail the sea believing in the power of the Swimmer, men who believe in the Walrus of unholy fame and in the existence of the specter bark Lucy to be seen at any time dodging in and out of the creeks and bays of the South Carolina coast. This is the tale of the Swimmer:

Near Cape Finisterre there lived a fisher maiden in days when the world asked fewer questions than now, and with her lived her fisher sweetheart. On their wedding night, runs the yarn, smugglers came down on their village, a thieving, drunken band. When they left, having done all the damage they could, the fisher maiden's sweetheart had disappeared, whether with them or through them was never known. Instead of pining uselessly, as would most women, she dressed herself in men's clothes and started to find him, dead or alive.

For years she wandered over the earth and ocean, and, though her disguise was penetrated several times and she passed through a host of troubles which vary with each telling, she succeeded in keeping up her hunt. Finally after escaping from an English prison the vessel she was on was lost at sea, and the simple Breton fishermen enshrined her in a legend which has her forever swimming the seas still in search of the man she loved and hailing each craft she nears. A sailor, be he Yankee or Portuguese, matter of fact in all things else or grossly superstitious, believes firmly that if you hear the hail of the Swimmer on a dark night at sea and answer it not woe follows swiftly.—New York Herald.

The Perfect Servant.

The thoroughly trained English servant is in his way the most perfect kind of servant to be found anywhere, and in his station and for his duties he is not to be matched in the world. Where will you find any men so competent in their work, so completely trained and apparently emotionless in manner, so punctual, so clean, so smart, as an English butler, coachman, footman or valet? Certainly not on the continent of Europe, in the United States, in Canada or in Australia.—Country Life.

Metals and Metaphors.

"It is most amazing," said a metallurgist, "how the world relies on metals for its metaphors and similes. Thus an orator is silver tongued or golden mouthed. An explorer is bronzed by know."

Aunt Sally put down the cards and rose up in intense indignation.

"Land sakes!" she exclaimed in horror. "Did you go there?"

No Secret.

"Well, well," exclaimed Miss Passay, "so she's twenty-five today. I guess it would surprise her if I should tell her I was the same age."

"Oh, no," replied Miss Knox; "she knows that, of course."

"She knows that I'm twenty-five?"

"No; that you were."—Philadelphia Press.

When Banks Are Bitten.

"Speaking of bad checks," said the cashier of a downtown bank, "don't you believe for a moment that most of the expert forgers are behind bars or frightened into inactivity. The distinguished professionals—those accustomed to play for a fortune at a single throw—are pretty well in hand, but there are others.

"As a matter of fact, the public would be surprised to learn how many bogus checks, perfectly executed, get past the bank officials every week in this city."

"Don't see many of 'em in the police court cases," a listener suggested.

"Of course not. Most of the checks are for small amounts and are made good by the bank officers. Why? Well, because it does a bank no especial good to have it known that forged checks can pass through its windows. So the matter is hushed up. Even when a man is caught in the act he is often allowed to go free if he is merely an agent and will tell who his principal is. It's business policy."—New York Globe.

AN ASSIZE OF BREAD.

Mobile's Regulation of Bakeries Early In the Last Century.

In the latter half of the seventeenth and the early part of the eighteenth centuries the regulation of the price of bread by public authority was a familiar principle in the English colonies of America. In New Haven, for instance, the weight of the penny loaf was regulated by law about 1660, and in 1696 the Massachusetts general court also provided a regular assize, fixing the weight of the loaf according to the price of flour. At various times during the first quarter of the eighteenth century the selectmen of Boston likewise performed this duty.

It is interesting, however, to note a survival or perhaps a revival of this principle as late as the nineteenth century in the town of Mobile, a place whose economic history is marked by many peculiar features. After fifty-two years of French, seventeen years of English and thirty-three years of Spanish rule Mobile came under the control of the United States government in April, 1813, and was included in the Mississippi territory. On Jan. 20, 1814, by an act of the territorial legislature the town received a charter of incorporation, and at two meetings of the inhabitants, on March 11 and 14, the municipal government was organized and the charter publicly read in English and in French. The population at this time was composed of French, English and Irish elements. On April 4 following, three weeks after the organization of the municipal government, a "tariff for bakers," or assize of bread, was drawn up by the commissioners (the governing body of the town) and proclaimed in English and in French. This fixed the weight of the loaf for the ensuing month in accordance with the price of flour. Instead of changing the price of bread it was more convenient to make the loaves lighter or heavier as the price of flour rose or fell. On May 2, 1814, the weight of the bit loaf (the bit being a coin worth 12½ cents) was fixed at twenty-eight ounces, and the weight of the half bit loaf was fixed at fourteen ounces.

On July 8, 1815, Mr. Martin, the baker, appeared before the board and paid the sum of $10, a fine inflicted on him for having his bread too light, one-half of which sum was paid to the police officer. On Jan. 24, 1817, a regular scale of weights for the bit loaf was adopted.

Beginning May 3, 1817, the assize of bread was proclaimed weekly instead of monthly, as before, and this system was continued for a little more than two years. The records do not show that the assize was proclaimed after 1819, but the town continued to exercise a control over the business of baking. Every baker was required to procure a license and to register his trademark, which was stamped on his loaves. A public bakehouse was also established and seems to have been managed in the same way that municipalities control public markets, the bakers renting the stalls from the town and being subject to inspection. As late as 1826 in the annual statement of the city clerk the following entry occurs in the statement of receipts during the year: "Sales of condemned bread, $1.87."—Quarterly Journal of Economics.

Working the Minister.

"Don't imagine ministers have an easy time," remarked the Brooklyn preacher. "If I gave to every one applying for alms, I would be bankrupt. Then there are agents who always want a minister to purchase their wares so that they may use his name when going to other houses in the neighborhood. Last week a dapper fellow called with an oil painting. He was a good talker, and, although I did not buy the picture, he did persuade me to give him one of my photographs. The next day several of my church people told me that he had visited them, showed them the photograph and succeeded in making sales. A minister's life may seem like a path of roses when viewed from the pew on a Sunday, but there are certainly thorns in it during the week."—New York Post.

Her Very Good Reason.

The two wives were discussing the pecuniary peculiarities of their respective husbands, and they coincided with great unanimity until they reached the point of their own relation to the purse strings.

"My husband never gives me a penny unless he growls about my extravagance," said one.

"Mine does the same thing," attested the other.

"But I get even with him." And her face showed the color of satisfaction.

"How do you ever do it?"

"I go through his trousers pockets when he's asleep."

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the other. "I wouldn't do that for anything."

"Why not? Haven't we a right to the money as well as they have?"

"Yes, but I wouldn't go through my husband's trousers pockets for it."

"I'd like to know why?" said the first, quite indignant at the apparent reproof.

"Because," blushed the other, "he carries his money in his waistcoat pocket."—Pearson's Weekly.

Alabaster Ornaments.

The best method of cleaning any alabaster ornament is to first remove any grease with spirits of turpentine and then to place the article in water for ten minutes or a little longer if very dirty. HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living n Rochester. I thought at first that I had breken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

MOCK IS A LEPER

Bacilli of Leprosy Found In the Chinaman

IS HELD UNDER GUARD

State Health Commissioner Dixen Wil try To Send the Man to the New York Leper Colony if Arrangements Can Be made

HE HAS BEEN HERE SeVEN YEARS

Harrisburg, July 10.—Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Health Commissioner, announces that Mock Sam, alias Charlie Mock, the Chinaman taken here last Friday on suspicion of being a leper s really afflicted with leprosy.

The announcement was made after Dr. Dixon received a telephone message from the Department of Health laboratories at the University of Pennsylvania, where Drs. Smith and Fox had found the bacill of leprosy in specimens taken from the chinaman, who is now isolated and under guard.

Mock is twenty-four years old and has been here seven years, and says he has been in his present condition for years, but physicians say the case is incipient. If possible, arrangements will be made to send him to the New York leper colony. He wants to be sent home, but that will not be considered at present.

Pool-room Man in Trouble.

This morning an interesting case held in Squire Keichline's office and for the benefit of our readers we have secured a short account of the same. The case could have been settled for about $40.00 dollars but the proprietor thought it best to take it into Court where he will be soaked two or three hundred dollars and costs.

The prosecutrix was represented by Fortney & Son. The case is as follows:

Commonwealth of Penna. } SS.
Centre Co. }

Personally appeared before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the county and state aforesaid, Mrs. Josephine Alexander, who being dulysworn according to law doth complain and say, that W. H. Stonebreker, is the proprietor o a Pool-room, located in the village of Julian in said County, and that Daniel Wellers, is the Superintendent in charge of said Pool-room, and that Kyle Alexander aged about 15 years, and Carey Alexander, aged about 10 years, and boys of other persons under the age of 18 years, are permitted to be present in such pool-room, and that the said Owner and Superintendent or both of them have refused and do refuse to keep boys under the age of 18 years out of the said Pool-room, that on the 4th of July the complainant took the older of her boys from the said pool-room, and that the father of the boys called the younger boy out at another time. That at the time the deponent took Kyle Alexander out of the said Pool-room, she spoke to the Superintendent, Mr. Wellers, and asked him whether or not he was not prohibited from allowing boys under 18 to enter the Pool-room, he replied that he could not keep them out, that he would let them come in when they pleased, but that he did not allow them to play.

That by permitting boys, the above named as well as others, to be in the said Pool-room, who were under the age of 18 years the said W. H. Stonebreker, owner, and the said Daniel Wellers, Superintendent, have violated the provisions of the act of assembly approved the 18 day of April A. D. 1905,

And further deponent sayeth not,

Sworn and subscribed before me this 8th day of July A. D. 1907.

THE POOR CAT.

One Occasion When the Animal Did Not Come Back.

When the cat died the whole family went into mourning, figuratively if not literally. No common back door cat this, but one that must be buried with all honor. The question was how and where.

Some one proposed cremation, but this was rejected on the ground that it sounded too much like lynching. It was finally proposed that the father, who had to cross a ferry every day to his place of business, should drop it overboard, and as a burial at sea rather appealed to the sentimental tittle of the family this idea was received favorably.

The following morning the remains of the cat were made into a package and securely tied. It was a lovely day, and the ferryboat was crowded with passengers, and what had seemed so simple at home assumed unexpected difficulties in the face of a curious crowd, ready to imagine anything and to put the worst construction on an apparently mysterious action.

Finally it occurred to the father that the best time would be the evening, and he could slip the cat overboard without attracting notice in the dusk. Through the day it occupied a corner of his office, and he was glad when the time came for the return trip.

He waited until the boat was well out in the stream and then, glancing around furtively, laid his hand on the package. Suddenly it struck him what would seem strange in broad daylight would seem doubly so at night.

With a smothered groan he replaced it on the seat beside him. There was no help for it—he would have to carry it home again.

As he took his seat in the train that was to convey him the rest of the way he placed the cat on the shelf above his head and for the first time that day forgot all about it. Hurrying to get off the car when he reached his destination, he was halted by some one behind him, who thrust into his hand the ill fated package.

When he reached his house he threw it down on a chair in the hall and went in to supper. In the middle of it the maid came in and asked how she should cook the meat he had brought with him?"

"Meat!" he exclaimed. "That isn't meat! It's"—

But at this moment the maid produced the package and showed him a choice piece of meat. History does not say what the man said who got the cat.—New York Sun.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Drinking Excuses.

Excuses for drinking are always at hand. Here are the five familiar ones:

Good wine, a friend, or being dry,
Or lest we should be by and by—
Or any other reason why.

If they don't suffice one can always fall back upon Dr. Sam Johnson's, "He who makes a beast of himself gets rid of the pain of being a man." On the other hand, here are three reasons, one of them cogent, that a Bostonian gave for not drinking:

"First.—I can't drink, for I've just lost a near relative. Second (when much pressed).—No, I really can't. You know I'm president of a temperance society. Third (when he was much more pressed).—No, I can't, indeed. I've just had four or five cocktails."—Boston Globe.

Not Hopeful.

"'Tis a fine, elegant husband you have, ma'am," said Maggie. "Him and me was talkin' about Ireland this mornin'. He's traveled as far as many a gentleman. And there ain't many husbands as good to their wives, ma'am. Look how he brings you lettuces and things from the market. But dear, dear! That kind never lives long."—Newark News.

Independent Criticism.

A little girl sat gazing fixedly at the new bonnet of one of her mother's visitors until the caller smilingly asked, "Do you like it, my dear?"

USED BIBLE AS CIPHER.

A Verse From Solomon Told of a Marriage Engagement.

When she left her home in the small town to come to New York to take up a special course of study her pet sister was fast reaching the crisis of a love affair. The pet sister was a most winsome young lady and had long kept a goodly train of suitors a-sighing. Was this affair to be the grand affair? The older sister hoped so, for she liked the young man cordially—thought he was just the sort to make a proper brother-in-law.

But the weeks passed, and not a bit of definite news about the progress of the affair did the older sister receive in her city boarding house. She became anxious. Louise, she thought, must not go on recklessly trifling in such important matters.

Then one night about 10 o'clock, just as she was going to bed, came a telegram. The servant brought it up. The elder sister was country girl enough to be thoroughly frightened by the pale manila, black inked envelope. How ominous it looked! At length she gathered courage to open it. This is what she read:

Solomon six three. LOUISE.

Solomon six three! Whatever in the world! Oh, why, yes, stupid, it of course meant the Song of Solomon, sixth chapter, third verse! But—and her cheeks flushed with shame—she had no Bible!

There was a great scurrying about the boarding house to find a copy of the sacred book. The girls were routed out in vain. On all sides the cry arose, "Who's got a Bible?" Just think of the sister trying to sleep that night without knowing what that verse was! It would have been just like a woman to lie down to pleasant dreams, content to know that she could satisfy her curiosity in the morning—not!

The landlady, good soul, came to the rescue. She was no heathen. She had a Bible. Up to her room with it flew the sister and shut the door. Such a turning over of pages by eager, nervous fingers! Solomon six three. She found it, and then she cried "Hurrah!" and laughed, for the verse was:

I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine.

Shopping In London.

One of the first things an American man or woman rushes out to buy in London is a serviceable well cut mackintosh, and the second article to be purchased is usually an umbrella. A man can buy in London a smart waterproof which with occasional reproofing will last him a lifetime for 3 or 4 guineas. In New York a very bad imitation will cost him from $40 to $50. The British umbrella is not only a thing of beauty in workmanship, but it will outlast all competitors across the seas.—London Express.

Mixed.

Here is a mixture of kingdoms, if not of metaphors, taken from a history examination paper: "He stretched his sultry length beneath the ewe tree's shade." "Away back as far as the time of Jack Cartier England sent her ships into Hudson bay to trade beads and muskets with the Indians for ivory off the walrus tree."—Century.

Her Postscript.

"Why does a woman always add a postscript to her letter?"

"Well," answered the ungallant wretch, "she probably figures out in her own mind what her letter has made you think and then tries to have the last word."

A little Kodol taken occasionally, especially after eating, will relieff sour stomach, belching and heartburn. J. B. Jones. Newport, Tenn. writer; "I am sure one 3 dollar bottles of your Kodol positively cured me of of dyspepsia, and I can recommend it as that was three years ago and I haven't been bothered since with it." Kodol is guaranteed to give relief. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

STRONG Again

is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol for Dyspepsia. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it.

Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer—weaken, and become diseased.

Kodol For Dyspepsia

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. Kodol relieves indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, sour risings, belching, heartburn and all stomach disorders.

Digests What You Eat

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—The Methodist Sunday School picnic will be held at Hecla Park Wednesday July 24th.

—Clate Brown landed a trout Tuesday morning measuring 19½ inches long and weighed 2¾ pounds.

—A slight accident happened up at one of the quarries along Buffalo Run Valley on Saturday afternoon.

—We are sorry to note the serious illness of W. W. Montgomery. We sincerely hope he may recover.

—Mrs. Katharine Gheret has been seriously ill and was taken to the hospital where she will undergo an operation.

—See Mr. Garber has bought out Mr. Strawn's bucket shop—Wonder how long the law will permit him to run the establishment.

—A freight train wrecked up along the Bald Eagle Valley on Wednesday evening and held the train due in Bellefonte at 8.16 until 10.30.

—Ira Gill received a very bad cut on the arm from a saw at the Noll Bros. saw mill at Pleasant Gap station. The gash is about four inches long and reaches nearly to the bone.

—Mrs. Jerry Nolan and family will move into the Keichline house on Thomas street. Mr. Herr and his family will occupy the house vacated by the Nolan family on High Street.

—Rev. Mr. Schmidt will give the second of his talks of Foreign Travels, Friday evening at 8 o'clock in St. John's Reformed Church. There is no admission charged and everyone is welcome.

—You don't hear hardly any thing about the Pruner Orphanage, it seems to have been dropped like lightning. Hope the "Combination" hasn't frightened the Councilmen into accepting the $10,000. "gift"

MARRIED—Mr. Arthur S. Zeigler and Mrs. Mary E. Wiesbaugh, of Altoona, Pa., were united in marriage at the United Brethren parsonage, Bellefonte, Pa., Friday the 12th of July, 1907, by Rev. W. H. Spangler, pastor of the local church.

—The Dale murder Case seems to have been dropped, nothing is being done, nothing is being said. Wonder what excuse the District Attorney has for not pushing the affair, perhaps he don't want to hurt anybody's feelings as he is a candidate for re-election.

—On Saturday R. B. Freeman, one of the officials of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. made an inspection tour over the Bald Eagle Valley to Lemont, and found the road in first class shape. At Lemont he met Ex-Gov. James Beaver who accompanied him over to Bellefonte.

—The 5th Regiment Band of Clearfield left on Sunday for Atlantic City for a few days recreation, reporting for duty at Philadelphia on Wednesday and from the Elks' Convention they will come back to the State Encampment at Tipton which opens July 20th.

—Miss Clara Cole daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole, of Williamsport, who makes her home with her grand-parents Mr. and J. B. Gentzell on Bishop street was taken to the hospital Monday at 3 o'clock and was operated on for appendicitis at 7:30. The young lady is getting along as well as can be expected.

—We noticed a married woman coming into town the other evening on the train and beside her sat a big lump of an agent. He had his arm up over the back of the seat and smiling kind of soft at the woman. She didn't know the fellow after she got off the train and met her husband, perhaps it was a made up scheme.

—A man in a neighboring town who secured a wife through a matrimonial agency is trying to secure a divorce. Just another instance of finding that mail order bargains are not just as represented and that a much better grade of the same article could have been obtained at home. Good enough for him: he ought to patronize home industry. The home grown article is usually the best.

—Philip Beezer has had erected a track from the curb into his butcher shop and thus saves the men from the heavy lifting. It is one of the greatest labor saving devices ever gotten out and should be used at all places where a man has heavy lifting to do. When the boys at the shop bring a wagon load of meat from the slaughter house all they have to do is just hook a quarter of beef on, give it a little push and away it goes to the rear of the butcher shop and there is a set of scales connected with the contraption, the meat can be weighed without taking the heavy quarter from the track. Philip is right there with the goods when it comes to making improvements.

—The Episcopals cleared $125 at their Gypsy Carnival.

—Mr. R. J. Gibbs, is still ill and confined to his home at Milesburg.

—Mrs. John Watson and Mrs Walter Fulton chaperoned a number of young ladies who had a picnic at Breons Gap on Monday.

—The base ball team at Coleville will hold another festival on the Chapel lawn at that place Saturday evening. Everyone is invited.

—Miss Elizabeth Blanchard with Miss Virginia Garber and Miss Bertha Lawes of Bryn Mawr, compose the party occupying the House of Lords on Nittany mountain.

—Tyrone was visited by a $50,000 fire on Tuesday, the large planing mills of F. B. Beyer & Co. were totally destroyed. Also four dwelling houses and two barns were burned down.

—A four-year old boy at Whitney swallowed a pint of whisky, which he mistook for natural nutriment, and died of acute alcoholism—That wouldn't effect the Poo poo in the least, they certainly won't die from that disease.

—The many friends of Chauncey Bill Stuart, formerly of State College, will be pleased to learn that he has finally made a rich strike on his oil lands in Oklahoma as a week or two ago he blew a well which is now spouting fifteen hundred barrels of oil a day.

—The Ladies Aid Society of the United Brethren Church will hold a festival Saturday night on Gerbrick's Green near the flour mill. Ice cream, cake, candy and other good things to eat will be sold. In case of bad weather the festival will be held in the lecture room of the church.

—A meeting was held at Hecla Park on Tuesday afternoon between the business men of Centre county and Clinton county and decided to hold the Business Men's Picnic at that place August 20. A large attendance of business men from both counties were present.

—Tuesday, James Furst, Esq., and Charlds McClure, both of Bellefonte, took the examination before the State Board of Examiners, in Philadelphia, that will permit them to practice in any court in the state, especially the Superior and Supreme courts. The passing of this examination, makes them full fledged lawyers. We trust that this will be the commencement of a successful and useful career.

—Frank Crissman, son of Homer Crissman, of Bellefonte, has joined the bugle corps of the 5th regt. N. G. P. and will go into camp with the boys at Tipton, Blair county. Frank is young and small, but he can keep pace with the best of them in sounding the bugle call. He, perhaps, will be the youngest member of the guard in camp, but that won't prevent him from being tossed fifty feet into the air from a blanket.

—Miss Helen Martin, well known as the author of "Tilly, the Mennonite Maiden," and just now being widely advertised by "His Courtship," came to State College last week with her two children to spend the summer with her sister, Miss Reimensnyder. Two days after, her youngest child developed scarlet fever and had to be taken to the Infirmary. Fortunately it was a mild case and the child is now rapidly convalescing.

—On Saturday evening Mr. John V. Schreck will give his entertainment of moving pictures and illustrated songs in Petrikin Hall. Mr. Schreck has two other moving picture shows on the road and is meeting with splendid success. We hope Bellefonte will fall in line and make his venture in our town a success. At Lock Haven and Renova he has been having large audiences every night. Petrikin Hall is an ideal place for an entertainment of this kind.

ACTRESS' DEATH ACCIDENT

Owner of Auto From Which She Fell to Pay for Funeral

A coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Miss Agnes H. Garger, the actress who was killed by being thrown from a swiftly moving automobile driven by Fred Owens of Danville city has found that "she met her death accidentally, falling from an automobile driven by Fred Owens and that he was not criminally responsible for her death."

Miss Garger was a graduate of the Ann Morgan Dramatic school of Chicago, where she was a star pupil. Her home is in Australia.

Mr. Owens is much affected by the affair and defrayed all funeral expenses. She was buried at Danville.

To Secure Large Tent

Chamberlain Brothers' Airdome theatre was totally destroyed by fire on the night of July 3rd at Johnsonburg and of which mention was made in this paper is to be enlarged and an entirely new outfit has been ordered. The new tent will have a seating capacity of 2, 500 people and it is thought the show will be able to resume about July 15. The management of this enterprise will originated in this city, have been somewhat unfortunate with storm and fire, but are undaunted in spirit and will go forth greater than ever. They are billed for their first engagement in Bellefonte.

G. B. HAVENS.

Succumbs to the Injuries Received at Harrisburg.

George B. Havens, the Tyrone young man who was terribly injured at Harrisburg Sunday night by falling from the train upon which he was going to Philadelphia, lingered at the Harrisburg hospital until 1.10 o'clock Monday morning when the dreadful fatal termination of the sad accident came.

When the news of the sad accident became known his brother Clarence, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mowry, who had been in the same car with him, but had gone past Harrisburg without noting his absence from the train, at once returned to Harrisburg and were with him throughout the time he lingered. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Havens and his brother, John Havens, Jr. at once went from Tyrone to the bedside of the young man. The sad family party returned to Tyrone Monday afternoon with the body which was taken to the home of the bereaved parents, 10 East Twelth St.

The deceased was aged 33 years and was born at Huntingdon. He came to Tyrone when the family moved hither from Huntingdon nineteen years ago. "Bert," as he was most generally known, was a genial young man, cordially liked by all who knew him. He was foreman in the barber shop of his brother, John Havens Jr., on Pennsylvania avenue. Surviving him are his parents and three brothers, Harry M., John and Clarence E. all of Tyrone. The deceased was a member of Tyrone lodge No. 112, B. P. O. Elks, and Sinking Spring lodge No. 127, Knights of Pythias. Mr. Haven was very well known in Beltefonte and his many friends here will feel sorry to hear of his untimely death.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Margaret Brachbill Falls a Great Distance and is Seriously Injured.

We are very sorry to note the serious accident that happened on Tuesday night to Mrs. Margaret Brachbill.

While in her sleep she got up out of bed and walked out on the front porch roof and fell to the pavement, breaking both her arms and was seriously injured other ways. The servant girl heard the noise and immediately went to the aged lady's assistance, medical aid was summoned and her injuries attended to. Mrs. Brachbill is over 88 years of age and it is feared the accident will result in a serious manner, although we sincerely hope that she may recover.

Her son William is in Philadelphia attending the Elks Carnival, and he was at once notified. The distance Mrs. Brachbill fell is at least twenty feet. The last report we heard from the home was that she was sleeping.
